NOTE FROM HEAD TEACHER

Dear Parents / Guardians / Carers,
As-salaamu alaikum

I hope that everyone managed to get some rest during the holidays and I am welcoming everyone back to school - remotely, from afar, of course!

Some exciting news this week, Al hamdu'lillah; we are very much looking forward to welcoming all our pupils back on 8th March, insha'Allah. I can't wait to, once again, see all our classrooms filled with pupils... and teachers of course.

So dear parents, make the most of the last week of remote learning. You'll have to put away your teacher's hat soon and I hope that this won't be too devastating for you! Who knows, you may even get the chance to have a relaxed cuppa instead of logging in or fretting over a lost internet connection.

Have a great weekend!
Wasalaam

NASA's Perseverance Mars Rover touched down on the Red Planet after a seven-month flight from Earth. To celebrate, Year 5 children have been busy working on making their own Rovers at home. Look at this excellent model by Eesa Khan Y5.

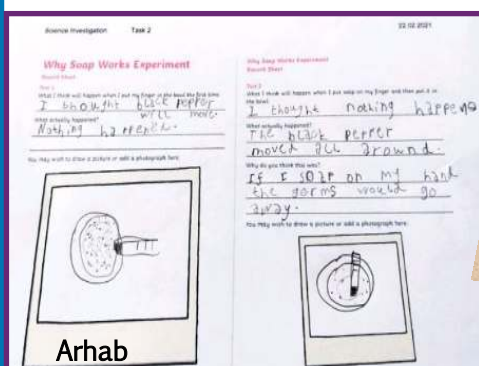

Through the veins, the oxygen-deficient blood - which is a dark purplish red - travels to the right chamber of the heart. While replenishing its oxygen levels in the lungs, the blood transforms into the bright red blood you all know. The now vibrant red blood arrives into the left chamber ready to be pumped to the rest of the body.

Zaina

Blood also: picks up extra food from the Liver; collects waste from the Kidney; and brings us warm.

Year 2 investigated hand hygiene and how soap works in Science.

Arhab

Year 6 explored the circulatory system in Science and wrote explanation texts in English to explain how blood travels around the body.

Blood circulation starts when the heart relaxes between two heartbeats: The blood flows from both atria (the two chambers of the heart) and into the ventricles (the lower two chambers), which then expand. The left side pumps low-oxygen blood into the pulmonary artery. The oxygen-rich blood travels through the pulmonary vein to the left atrium into the left ventricle. The next heartbeat starts this again.
